

Nonviolence and Legitimate Power

We reject the idea that the ends justify the means. History shows the danger of this belief.

We believe:

- There are many causes worth dying for, but very few worth killing for
- Violence is only justifiable in self-defense and only as a last resort
- Any planetary peace movement must be nonviolent to be legitimate

The planet may require a peacekeeping force, but no single nation should dominate that role. Responsibility must be shared and accountable.
