

A Planetary Future

Humanity now possesses technologies capable of extraordinary progress or catastrophic destruction. Nuclear weapons, environmental collapse, pandemics, autonomous weapons systems, and political extremism threaten our shared future.

We therefore call for:

- Greater international cooperation.
- Peaceful conflict resolution.
- Stronger human rights protections.
- Democratic accountability.
- Protection of minorities.
- Scientific cooperation.
- Responsible stewardship of the Earth.

We support the gradual development of democratic planetary institutions rooted in human rights, constitutional law, subsidiarity, local self-government, transparency, and accountability.

Conclusion

Humanity's future depends on choosing cooperation over destruction. We believe people can build a more peaceful, free, just, and fair world.

This declaration is an invitation to all people — regardless of nationality, religion, philosophy, race, gender, or political belief — to work peacefully and nonviolently toward a better future for all humanity.
